

Manhasset Preschool Guide

2010-2011

Sending your child to preschool is a milestone for you and your child, but preparation will make you both feel more comfortable. Before you begin this step into your child's first school experience, consider carefully your child's personality, temperament, and readiness for preschool; your needs regarding hours and location; your philosophy of child development, social interaction, and education; and your desire to participate and be involved with your child in school and with other parents.

Once you have reviewed the information about programs that interest you and speak to your friends regarding their children's experiences, a visit to the school(s) in which you are interested will help you make the final decision. We have included characteristics of a quality preschool program, suggested questions to ask the director, and what to look for when visiting. Many of these questions have been addressed in this guide and will be answered by the nursery school administrator. Keep in mind that no question is insignificant when it comes to your child. Also, as you are observing the school in progress, remember that actions speak louder than words. Trust your judgment about whether a program is best for your child.

This guide contains descriptions of eight private nursery preschool programs, one afterschool program, and two subsidized programs, a list of preschools in neighboring towns, a list of childcare centers, tips on preparing your child for preschool, a questionnaire about children with disabilities or special needs, and a bibliography for parents and children.

This guide is not intended to be an exhaustive list of all preschool programs available in Manhasset or the surrounding towns. Since participation by preschool programs in this guide is voluntary, other programs may exist that are not listed. In addition, the information contained in this guide has been provided by the participating preschool programs, and the Partnership does not warrant or represent the accuracy of such information.

Inclusion in this guide does not constitute a recommendation or endorsement of any preschool program by the Partnership. The Partnership conducts no investigation of any kind of any of the preschool programs listed in this guide and assumes no responsibility with respect to the suitability or competency of any such preschool program for your child. The Partnership strongly urges you to conduct your own thorough investigation of any preschool program in which you may be considering enrolling your child.

When Selecting a Preschool

From the National Association for the Education of Young Children

Characteristics of High Quality Preschool Programs

1. Are the children in the program generally comfortable, relaxed, happy, and involved in play and other activities?

Happy, relaxed children who are enjoying themselves as they play and learn are one of the best signs of a good program. Is there an ample variety of material for children of this age group? Would your child enjoy this setting?

2. Are there sufficient adults with specialized training in early childhood development and education?

The younger the child, the more individualized attention is needed. NAEYC recommends that all groups have at least two teachers. Infants should be in groups of no more than 6 to 8 children, 2- to 3-year-olds should be in groups of 10 to 14 children, and 4- and 5-year-olds should be in groups of 16 to 20 children. Specialized training in child development and early education helps teachers assure that they understand how children grow and learn so they can be more effective teachers and caregivers.

3. Do adult expectations vary appropriately for children of differing ages and interests?

Toys and materials should vary by age as should teachers' expectations for children. In addition, teachers and caregivers should recognize and respect individual differences in children's abilities, interests, and preferences.

4. Are all areas of children's development stressed equally with time and attention devoted to cognitive, social, emotional, and physical development?

High quality early childhood programs do much more than help children learn numbers, shapes, and colors. Good programs help children learn how to learn, to question why and discover alternative answers, to get along with others, and to use their developing language, thinking, and motor skills.

5. Does the staff meet regularly to plan and evaluate the program?

Planning should reflect a balance of activities between vigorous outdoor play and quiet indoor play. Activities should allow ample time for children to work and play individually or in small groups with the focus on activities that are child initiated as opposed to teacher directed. Flexibility, however, is also the key. Staff should be willing to adjust the daily activities to meet the children's needs and interests.

6. Are the parents welcome to observe, discuss policies, make suggestions, and participate in the work of the program?

Close communication among parents and staff is vital. Staff should regularly discuss highlights of the child's experiences with parents and show respect for families regarding cultures and backgrounds.

DAY NURSERY SCHOOL OF THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Education is not a race. Children need time to explore, experiment, discover, and create as they begin to make sense of the world around them. Program development, staff selection, and daily operation reflect the encouragement of growth through exploration of self and environment, development of socialization skills, and adherence to guidelines designed to maintain a flexible classroom environment. Activities promote critical and creative thinking, self-expression, self-respect, and responsibility. Nursery school should foster joy in learning, self-esteem in each individual, love and concern for others. In an atmosphere that is loving, accepting, and nurturing, various experiences are offered that stimulate learning in all developmental areas: social, physical, emotional, and cognitive.

OUR LADY OF GRACE MONTESSORI SCHOOL

Subsidized Programs Serving Manhasset Children

Two preschool programs are funded by the school district and/or the local, state or federal government:

Head Start provides a comprehensive child development program, including parent education and social services designed to meet the needs of low-income families. They have an extended day that benefits working parents.

The Great Neck/Manhasset Parent Child Home Program, sponsored by the school district, provides a parent-child experience for 16-month to 3-year-old young children and includes home visits.

GREAT NECK/MANHASSET PARENT- CHILD HOME PROGRAM

We believe that the family, rather than an outside expert, can and should play the most important role in helping a child become a successful learner. Our primary goal is to prevent educational disadvantage through early intervention and empowerment of the parent in his/her role as the child's first teacher.
